Pilgrimage to Viet Nam: On Managing and Healing the Wounds of War

This November, during the 50th anniversary of the death of her husband, Maj. Yale R. Davis, in Viet Nam, Billie Knighton journeyed with nine others under the auspices of Soldier's Heart, on their 18th Healing and Reconciliation pilgrimage to Viet Nam. Each one of these journeys has been personalized for the participants, most particularly for veterans, but also for families and others who wish to experience the meanings of what the American war in Viet Nam has come to signify for both the U.S and the Vietnamese, while also providing a contemporary view of the Vietnamese people and country's remarkable path of recovery from war's devastation. This is the story of how that journey came to be.
